CJP Century Journals Project

世纪期刊
Shiji qikan

3,500 Journals Titles

17.8 Million Full-Text Articles

Century Journals Project is the single largest retrospective collection of journals from China. In this complete database there are more than 3,500 full-text Chinese journals from 1906 through 1993.

CJP documents the economic, political, scientific, philosophical and cultural development of modern China with on-line access to the often hidden, always dynamic, life and times of one of the world's largest populations.

In CJP researchers will be able to trace a cross-section of respected Chinese scholarship through the founding of the People's Republic of China, the Cultural Revolution, economic reform and the rapid ascent of China to the position it now occupies in the world.

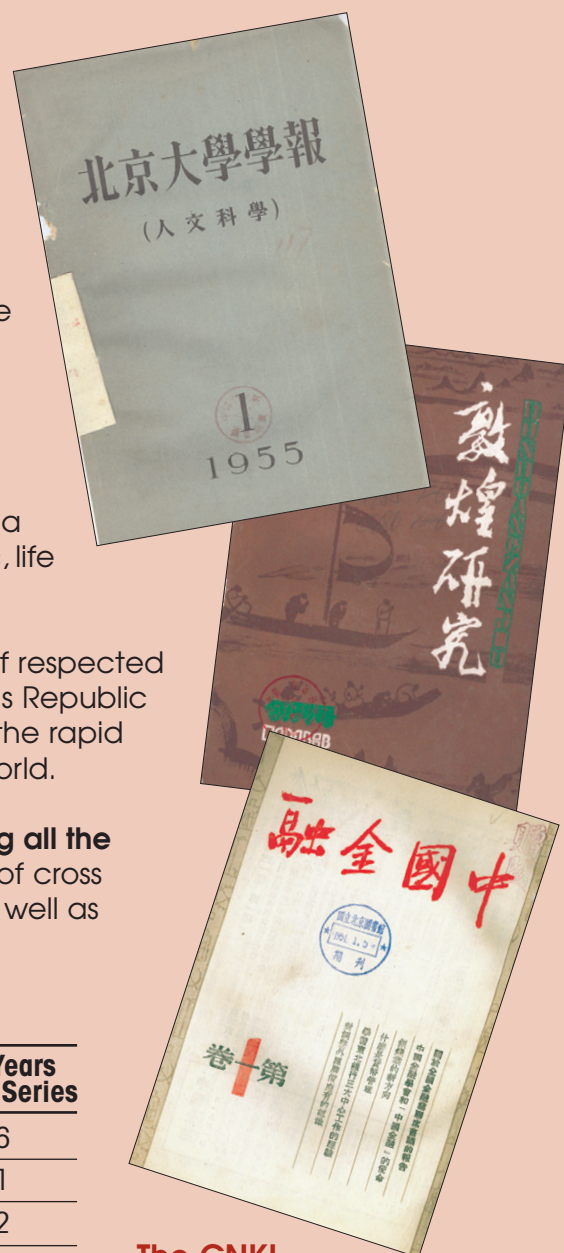

CJP integrates with the robust search tools of CAJ sharing all the benefits of the CNKI interface. This provides many types of cross reference between databases and journals in English as well as Chinese.
